Coach passenger rights

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

Mobility and Transport

Cancellation? Long delay? Discrimination when purchasing tickets?

While travelling by bus and coach around Europe you are protected by passenger rights. These rights apply as long as your journey begins or ends within the European Union, it's a regular service, and you're set to travel along specified routes with predetermined stops at specified intervals.

NON DISCRIMINATION

You are protected against discrimination based on your nationality, place of residence or disability when you buy a ticket or during travel.

DISABLED PERSONS AND PERSONS WITH REDUCED MOBILITY

You have the same rights to travel as other passengers and you should be able to travel without difficulties and at no extra cost. Carriers, travel agents and tour operators can only refuse to sell you a ticket or take you on board if it's physically impossible given the design of the vehicle, the bus stop or the terminal building, or doing so would breach health and safety requirements.

For international services of more than 250 km, carriers and bus terminal managers must provide you assistance free of charge at the designated bus terminals and on the board of coaches and buses. Alternatively they can accept a person accompanying you on-board for free.

If you need assistance, you will also need to notify them at least 36 hours before your intended journey.

If your mobility equipment is lost or damaged due to the fault of the carrier or terminal manager, you must receive full compensation.

INFORMATION RIGHTS

You must receive adequate information about your service and your passenger rights. The bus and coach companies and terminal managing bodies are required to inform you about your passenger rights before departure.

ASSISTANCE IN CASE OF DELAY OR CANCELLATION

The following rules apply to international services of more than 250 km. If your service is delayed or cancelled, you must be informed about the situation and the estimated departure and arrival times immediately once such information is available. For services where the scheduled duration is more than three hours and it is cancelled or delayed in departure from a bus terminal for longer than 90 minutes, you will be offered, free of charge meals, refreshments (if they can reasonably be supplied) and, under certain conditions, accommodation.

RE-ROUTING OR REIMBURSEMENT IN CASE OF DELAY, CANCELLATION OR OVERBOOKING

For international services of more than 250 km, if your service is overbooked and you're denied boarding, or the carrier expects either a delay of more than two hours or cancellation of the service, it must immediately offer you the choice between re-routing to your final destination and reimbursement of the ticket price.

Retouring should be offered at no additional cost, at the earliest opportunity and under comparable conditions. Reimbursement of the ticket price should be offered in combination, where relevant, with a free of charge return at the earliest opportunity to your first point of departure set out in the transport contract.

You can also agree with the carrier to rebook your trip at a convenient later date, under comparable transport conditions.

If the bus or coach breaks down during the journey, the carrier must send another one with which you can continue your journey.

COMPENSATION IN CASE OF DELAY, CANCELLATION OR OVERBOOKING

For international services of more than 250 km, you're entitled to compensation amounting to 50% of the ticket price if your service was overbooked and you were denied boarding, or it was cancelled or delayed by more than two hours compared to the scheduled departure time, and the carrier did not offer you the choice between re-routing or reimbursement.

LIABILITY TOWARDS THE PASSENGERS AND THEIR LUGGAGE

The following rules apply to international services of more than 250 km. Carriers can be held liable to pay compensation for the injury or death of passengers and the damage or loss of their luggage resulting from accidents.

Carriers will also provide assistance to cover the passengers' immediate practical needs following an accident.
